

Steven Driscoll, M.Ed.

Supervisory Research Specialist

U.S. Secret Service National Threat
Assessment Center (NTAC)

Mr. Driscoll is the Supervisory Research Specialist of the U.S. Secret Service National Threat Assessment Center (NTAC), where he oversees the agency's training, consultation, and outreach on threat assessment and the prevention of targeted violence, including school violence, workplace violence, terrorism, attacks against government officials and facilities, and mass attacks in public spaces. In 2019, NTAC released Protecting America's Schools: A U.S. Secret Service Analysis of Targeted School Violence, which represents the most comprehensive analysis of targeted school violence ever produced by the federal government. Mr. Driscoll is the recipient of the 2019 Secret Service Director's Individual Impact Award and the Team Impact Award, as well as the 2019 DHS Secretary's Award for Excellence.

The U.S. Secret Service's National Threat Assessment Center (NTAC) provides guidance on threat assessment to agencies with criminal justice and public safety responsibilities. <https://www.secretservice.gov/protection/ntac/>.
